Stem cells have shown great promise for therapeutic and regenerative medicine. However, accumulating evidence obtained by lineage tracing has suggested a strong link between tissue stem cells and the origin of cancer. We report here significant recruitment of bone marrow cells to cutaneous epithelium in the context of carcinogenesis.

Noon, Monday, November 20, 2017
Auditorium, Life Sciences Building,
145 Bevier Road, Busch Campus, Piscataway, New Jersey
Host: Dr. Derek Gordon, Phone: 848-445-1147, Email: gordon@dls.rutgers.edu