For years, my laboratory has researched genetic modifiers of age-at-onset of Alzheimer’s disease (AD) in both familial and case-control data. I will present how we have uncovered genetic heterogeneity implicating promoter variants in age-at-onset of AD combining sophisticated analytical techniques, careful study design, and data representing diverse populations.